

Montreal, March 15th, 1921.

Dear Sir:-

The picture of my big corporal has reached me and I like it. It doesn't do you justice but I shall allow my imagination to do the necessary. It seems that good looking people do not photograph well. I always take a splendid picture!

The frame, incidentally holding my map, has gone forward. I am disappointed in the eyes. I was really too weary to pore that day, and knew that my eyes were dull, but did not wish to delay the matter further.

I thank you for giving me details of your business. I should like very much to be kept posted relative to future matters. You are attending to your business and you can't do more. you cannot very well go out and solicit business - it must come to you.

What you can do is to advertise yourself in the community. Are you doing that? It is only a matter of time before you will be so rushed that you will have to replace your letters to me with wires. Have courage, dearest, and all will be well, and at the end of a year, when prospects are bound to look brighter, your Blinking Sue will come out to keep you company and give you something tangible to worry about.

Now, Saucy, I thought we had the gift question all settled before you left. I will positively not accept anything except books. This is final. No appeals to the contrary will be confirmed. Any and all spare cash is to go into your Savings Account, and once there, you must consider it spent and forget about it. And if you want to please me further, let me know when the first dollar goes in and every time you make a further deposit. Remember "Save the pennies, and the dollars will look after themselves." Some curious piece of cheese thou hast chosen! But seriously, I feel that I should know these things, so that I shall not be making plans on thin air.

When I give you permission to tell your folks - now don't get excited - I suppose they will want to see me and give me the once-over, even as I would like to do unto them. (I don't know why it is, but I feel that I am going to love Mrs. Peaner.) The correct thing is for them to call on me. Please give me your opinion as to how you would like the meeting to be arranged. This is all "supposing."

Sometimes, Saucy, I feel like leaving everything behind and going to you - nothing else seems to matter, and I am sure you feel likewise at times. I hope you will not be so rash as to come down unexpectedly. It would involve a great expenditure of money, and we cannot afford it. Every dollar you save brings us so much nearer the winning post, and every dollar spent takes you so much farther away. Of course you realize all this as thoroughly as I do, but I must express my thoughts.

You said something in your last letter about writing every second day. Don't you dare! I need a letter every day. Some days I need two or three.

Soul food is as essential as food for the body. And so long as you do not neglect business to write to me, won't you please send your messages as regularly as in the past? I know you will, my dearest possession.

With all my love and more to come, I am

All yours,

Rosana.

P. S. You need not mark my letters "Personal."
