

February 26, 1933.

My Dearest,

I love you darling, and am impatiently counting off the minutes until Saturday morning, when you will be here. It will be so good to be with you my sweetheart.

I hope sweetheart that it is quite in order for you to miss work on Saturday morning because of course if it is not convenient, then I'll have to be patient until Saturday evening. I do hope that you are going to be able to arrive in the morning. Two days of heaven with you - that's what it will be dearest.

Sweetheart, when you get here on Saturday, we can talk over all the little details about the wedding. I'll be so glad when April 9 arrives because the suspense is beginning to be awful.

Anita has reminded me again that she is entertaining for us on March 4. As if we would forget! She does give nice parties. They usually last until about 4 a.m. and I don't think I'll want to stay till such an awful hour. Have you been practising to dance darling? I hope so, because I do want you to dance with me. You'll enjoy it a lot too darling, so do try. After you know how to dance, it is simply thrilling, and especially so, if you're dancing with someone you love.

Give my love dearest to dear mother and dad. Tell me how the new house is coming along. By the time I get to Victoria it will probably be well on its way to being finished. Do tell me about it.

Each day is going to be very long my darling, until you arrive next Saturday.

With all my heart I love you.
